novel | Age 6+

120 pages | 165x210 mm | Hard cover
Sample translation available in English

Have you heard of the boy who was as small as an itty-bitty fly when he was born? Who could fit into the palm of your hand? Years later, when this boy grew up, he could hide himself from prying eyes no matter how hard they pried. He became utterly unnoticeable. So of course you haven't heard of him – until now. A unique tale of finding fortitude, acceptance and friendship, with a strong Nordic feel to it and simultaneously a reprise of the Jack and the Beanstalk tale, a love letter to nature, and even a motivational tale to help children to find their courage and learn to love themselves. All of this is complemented by stunning, breathtakingly beautiful illustrations from Jacqueline Molnár.

Hello, Heracles!

Author: István Tasnádi
Illustrator: Miklós Felvidéki

novel | Age 9+

168 pages | 130×195 mm | Soft cover
Sample translation available in English

A totally new take on the Heracles story! There is a boy who is not particularly tall, nor strong, nor indeed at all heroic. Well, he is obviously NOT Heracles, rather Heracles' half-brother, Iphicles. He narrates the story of Hercules as he grows from a difficult-to-handle lad into the legendary hero we know from the storybooks. Readers find themselves torn between deep emotion and laughing out loud, at the same time rediscovering this old story from a new perspective. It's also a great conversation starter about modern mosaic families and the special bond that forms between siblings that reads like comics.

80 pages | 163x235 mm | Hard cover
Sample translation available in English

We have all met the situation when our child is begging for a pet: a dog, a cat, a turtle, a rabbit, a goldfish or a giraffe. It doesn't matter which. The main thing is to have a pet.

Of course, there are many advantages in having a nice cuddly animal at home, but kids can't always assess the responsibilities that come with taking care of a pet. Whatever promises they make, in the end the whole family will be involved in the process of feeding them, taking them to the vet or for a walk. It's very useful to have a competent relative who knows all about animals. In this book Uncle Bert teaches the children about everything a pet needs to be happy when living in a family home. Full of funny (but 100% true!) information, this title helps us to decide whether we could really live with that animal in our house.

The author of this humorous non-fiction story book is biologist, has countless pets and is an ambassador for responsible ownership.

Author: Ildi Vibók
Illustrator: Tamás Mayer

narrative non-fiction | Age 6+

48 pages | 165x235 mm | Hard cover
Sample translation available in English

Princess Emma refuses her vaccination. Doc doesn't insist, but he does recall how a human immune system works and shows Emma every cell that helps her body to protect her. He also tells her the story of previous plagues and how the first vaccines were invented, not to mention all those infections that Emma avoided thanks to the shots that she received in her early years. Finally, the little princess decides to get the jab after all, and makes plans to invent new vaccines in cooperation with the Doc.

This book explains all the mysteries surrounding vaccines with concentrating on the facts, but in a child-friendly and accessible way. Thus, not only do they learn about why they get various shots over the years, but understand the problems of their parents, who have talked about nothing but vaccines for the past year.

The internationally acclaimed illustrator teaches us that the most important part of drawing is not perfection, it's FUN!

It all began with daily Facebook posts during the first covid lockdown, but those posts went viral, and the drawings became a hugely popular phenomenon. The titles of the Let's Draw a Potato series soon became bestsellers, sold in many thousands of copies. Their secret lies in ditching the anxiety and tension around "not being artistic" by showing that every line and shape is just perfect as it is. The fourth volume of the series gets a bit more complicated than the previous books, but is based on the same simple principle: everyone can draw - all you need is a potato!

Black Summer

Author: Ágnes Mészoly

novel | Age 12+

424 pages | 130×195 mm | Soft cover
Sample translation available in English

The most important thing for Fanni is to make a death demon costume for the next comic con. She finds an unusual ally for her project in the old lady who lives next door. This makes her religious parents even more concerned - God only knows why. Fanni never thought that during one bittersweet summer she would discover love, reveal a shocking family secret, and become a true death demon.

This young adult novel tackles so many important topics (especially for teens) that we don't openly talk about: death, loss, family struggles, relationships between the young and the elderly. And, of course, a good dose of the outcast teen trying to navigate between friends, school, love, and sewing the perfect anime death demon outfit for the summer cosplay convention – you know, stuff we all definitely have personal experience with.
